> Far in the past journalism established the unwritten rule that the daily routine events of a man's life was exempt from publication among the personal happenings of the day. Of course a man has the right to transact his own business in his own stable without newspapers throwing the gaze of the public in upon him. Now Mr. J. M Frebman, of the firm, Williams & Freeman, who are at present using the barn of W. R. Yandell for a feed store, says that it is much more unusual, and even worse, to have to sell hay, corn and oats out of another man's stable.

SOME PECULIAR MODES

In Slavery Time. -- An InterestingiProgram Announced.

On the fifth Sunday in April the old Salem Baptist church in Livingston county will be one hundred years old and centennial services will be conducted to commemorate the event. The old records of the organization are intact and will be exhibited at the centennial services. These records are at present in the hands of Rev. J. S. Henry, of this Bird. city, who is preparing an essay on the past membership of the church from a historical standpoint. "

To the present; generation the old records of this church reveal customs that are strikingly odd and entirely unknown in church erganizations of to-day. In that day the colored people, all of whom were slaves, confessed Christ and were united with the churches to which their masters belonged, and in spiritual matters they were considered the equal of their masters. One or more instances are on record in the history of this church where a white person had injured a colored person unwittingly for which that person was either expelled from the church, or required to make public acknowledgements of the wrongs gin the Hina-Babb Co.

C. B. Hina, a former salesman of the Marion Hardware Co. and C. R. Babb, of Salem, have purchased the salvage of the Marion Hardware Co. left from the recent fire and will enter the hardware business under the firm name of Hina-Babb Co. Theywill close out all the goods of the former company that were damaged in the fire at bargain prices and will buy new goods from time to time. As soon as the burned district is rebuilt this firm will occupy either the old stand or another building in the center of the city's busiest district, At present their headquarters are in the barn near the Marion Graded School building. These men are upright and energetic and we bespeak for them a successful business career.
